Yumi is a small, local east meets west themed café located in downtown San Francisco. Through their multicultural corn themed menu, their mission is to celebrate various cultures and cuisines through corn staples such as Asian corn chowder, Mexican eloté, cornbread, or even popcorn. Though this family-friendly space is open to anyone who just wants to eat a bit of corn, their target market and audience would be locals and young tourists who are looking for a unique café experience, and are looking for a good place to hang out with their friends, or take cool instagram pictures at.
